

UCLA GUIDELINES FOR DEPARTMENTS WISHING TO REQUEST H-1B VISA STATUS FOR TEMPORARY WORKERS WITH SPECIALTY OCCUPATIONS

International Students and Scholars
106 Bradley International Hall
Campus 137907

H-1B visa status is for aliens with specialty occupations coming to the U.S. temporarily to perform services of a professional nature. The purpose of these guidelines is to help departments determine who qualifies for H-1B status under UCLA sponsorship, to clarify requirements and to outline the procedure. The Office of International Students and Scholars (OISS) assists departments¹ by advising on regulations, preparing and filing the labor condition application (LCA) with the Department of Labor (DOL) and preparing and filing the H-1B petitions with the Bureau of Citizenship and Immigration Services (BCIS).

The University will support H-1B status for an alien who has been offered a full-time temporary position as a faculty member, researcher, or other professional staff which is critical to the institution's academic or research mission. Examples of payroll titles which qualify are Lecturer or higher faculty title, Postgraduate Researcher III or higher, Staff Research Associate II or higher, and Programmer/Analyst II or higher. A job offer of three or more years is preferred. UCLA students are not eligible for UCLA H-1B petition sponsorship.

When there is a question as to meeting this criteria, the chair or director should send OISS a memo indicating the title of the position to be offered; salary; appointment dates; and description of the position, including job requirements and the academic degree/background necessary for the position. The memo should also include a clear statement of the importance of the alien to the institution's academic or research mission.

Under current regulations: the H-1B status is granted for an initial period of three years with a three year extension for a maximum period of six years. UCLA is required to file a Labor Condition Application (LCA) which attests that the alien will be paid the prevailing wage. UCLA must also attest that UCLA will provide working conditions that will not adversely affect the working conditions of U.S. workers; that there is no strike or lockout at the time that the LCA is filed; and that UCLA has either notified the appropriate bargaining representative of filing an LCA or posted a notice of filing at two locations.

The hiring department is required by law to pay the reasonable cost of the alien's return transportation abroad if the alien is dismissed before the end of the period of authorized employment.

Please note that H-1B status is employer-specific.

There is another classification, the J-1 exchange visitor, which may be used for professors, research scholars, or specialists. Although the J-1 status carries with it certain restrictions, (i.e., three year maximum duration and a home country residence requirement for some persons), it may be obtained more quickly and easily than an H-1B if the alien is not in the U.S. Please note that the dependents of J-1 may apply for work authorization whereas the dependents of H-1B may not. To determine whether the J-1 classification is appropriate for a specific case, please contact Shideh Hanassab, the J-1 visa counselor, at 825-1681.

In order to request that UCLA petition for an H-1B classification, the chair or director should provide OISS with all the documents listed below.

BIOGRAPHICAL INFORMATION SHEET

The attached sheet, signed by the chair or director, describes the level, salary, funding, benefits and duration of the job offered as well as information about the alien for BCIS forms. The chair also agrees to pay return fare of the alien if dismissed before the end of the authorized employment. OISS will use this information to determine whether the job offer meets UCLA criteria. If so, OISS will prepare an LCA and a Form I-129 and obtain appropriate University signatures.
